
Post-Award Process

Promoting your Project

PAVIR takes pride in its mission to advance Veteran and public health through innovative research. We continuously seek excellence for meaningful results, and value information dissemination. While pavir.net is primarily intended for internal use and in support of value-driven and efficient research support, pavir.org was designed to create an outside voice and extension to the public for the innovative work conducted by researchers and the institution as a whole. We proudly post Principal Investigators' short bios, project descriptions, and project recruitment information on PAVIR.org. PAVIR.org also functions as the portal for PAVIR employment applications and potential applicants can use the site to gain a deeper understanding of the PAVIR research and support environment.

If you are interested in promoting your project, including participant recruitment, please contact info@pavir.org or visit the Featured Projects and Get Involved sections on pavir.org. In addition, note the Guidelines on how to post on pavir.org.

Samples of project promotion

PI short bio on pavir.org

Project description on pavir.org

Project recruitment on pavir.org

Publishing your PAVIR administered work

PAVIR employed researchers must list PAVIR as their affiliation. Other PIs are expected to note PAVIR in the acknowledgement section.

VA expects its contributions to medical and scientific research to receive due credit and research. Please review VHA Handbook 1200.19 for additional information.